DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

> The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 52-57 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. Claim 52 contains the phrase "at least 0.5 g per hectoliter" and specificational basis for the phrase could not be found.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

> The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claim 55 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 55 is indefinite because the cope of the term "about" is unknown.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

> (a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 52-57 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hoelle for the reasons set forth in the previous Office actions.

With regard to claim 57, the use of carbon dioxide as an extractant of hops is notoriously well known. Evidence of such notoriousness is found in applicants' specification on page 18, lines 33-37, whereby applicants obtained CO2 extracts from suppliers. It would have been obvious to those of ordinary skill in the art to use a CO2 extraction process in Hoelle as the extractant because it is well known that it leaves no residue that can contaminate the beer.

Response to Arguments

Applicants' arguments filed 03/11/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicants argue that Hoelle's extract would not contain significant amounts of intact pectin and further that this amount cannot be ascertained. It is not understood how, on the one hand, applicants can be sure that no significant amount of pectin is present in the extract, and then state that they cannot ascertain how much pectin is in the extract. The burden is upon applicants to show that the extract would not inherently have hop pectin. See In re Best.

It also appears that applicants consider the pH of extraction critical. If this is the case, the claims should reflect such a critical aspect of the invention.

Applicants argue that the waste is not added directly to the wort. Applicants' claims do not require this feature and therefore the argument is not persuasive. Further it appears that all calculations made are speculative and therefore they are not given any weight. Clearly, those in the prior art can add hop pectin extract to bittering compounds, such as the bitter principle extract of Hoelle, which is then added to the wort boil.

It is noted that Hoelle teaches the total extraction of hop content and its addition to wort. (See col. 1, lines 61-65).
